Background

Place of Birth: A secret cave in the Clatspur Range; raised in the Town of Woodych (F3-83), Concatenated Cantons of Perrenland

Date of Birth: 16th of Reaping, 492 CY

Brief History: When Orthos Copperhead was born, the local old crone had a vision. She prophesied that Ortho will meet his death by a poisoned knife wielded by a friend. This prophesy was never mentioned to Orthos until his thirty-fifth birthday – the day he became a (young) adult. Orthos' mother was unwed when she had him but her family didn't care. They all – from the three remaining grandparents and the many aunts and uncles – welcomed Orthos into the family.

While growing up, Orthos showed he had a knack for two things – stone masonry and getting into trouble. His mischeviousness would often got him into trouble. There was the one time he caused so much racket that Orthos left town for nine months to wait for things to cool down. His antics eventually caught the attention of the Clatspur Daggers thieves' guild. They were impressed and he was admitted as a member.

Orthos' various illegal activities gave him a lifestyle filled with dangerous thrills and excitement. He loved the rush. His illicit activities also rewarded him with valuable pieces of knowledge – like the secret passages, entrances, and exits to a local Mayor's estate.
