Appearance:

Height: Average

Build: Slim

Looks: Attractive

Apparent Age: Mature Adult

Actual Age: 27

Recognition Handle: Shaved head except on top, short dreads; left-handed; NRF issued spacesuit.

Distinguishing Physical Characteristics:

Aleana Farr is an attractive woman of average height (1.73 m) with a full figure. Her full figure is covered with a standard issue NRF spacesuit. She carries a NRF-issued blaster pistol sidearm and a hand-held scanner/communicator device.

Brief Personal History:

Birthplace: Generational Spaceship Hercules-212HB, in deep space in the Hyades Star Cluster, 2940 CE

Aleana Lizbeth Farr was born onboard the generational spaceship, Hercules-212HB. War had devastated their home sector of the galaxy so they looked elsewhere for their salvation. The ship set out for a distant star system in the Hyades Star Cluster that had been assigned for colonization by the Nakamura-Rubin Foundation (NRF). The Foundation financed the expedition (that was projected to take one hundred and twenty years to complete). Faster hyperspace drives were scarce in their galactic sector (due to the previous war) so the Foundation was forced to go with an old but reliable generational ship. Aleana and her generation are the last to be ship-born – born in transit in deep space. The next generation would be planet-born, the first of hopefully many more.

Once she was on the colony world of Agozi, Aleana found her assigned quarters at the Windsor-Prime Station. Her cramped, narrow one-room billing made her homesick for her quarters aboard the Hercules. She dreamed of the Hercules and being in space again while she slept on that first night planet-side.

She had a shock when she woke up the next morning – she was on a completely different planet! She was one of twelve people who were "timejacked" by an unknown force. She found herself in No Man's Land – a strange wooded area with a weird stone building surrounded by mysterious mists.

Personality:

Motivations/Desires/Goals:

Aleana Lizbeth Farr grew up in a culture that placed serving the Nakamura-Rubin Foundation and its colony first above all else. She believed in the culture that she was raised in. Everything was perfect until they actually arrived at their destination. She thought it was wonderful that they can now build their new home, but she missed spaceflight. That's where her heart truly belonged. She must now change from being a spacer to being a colonist and that's a change she's not sure she can make. She loves her family and friends who are now on Agozi IV, even if her heart yearns for the expanse of outer space.

She is a huge fan of the fictional animated superhero Vidcom show, Space Spectre. Space Spectre was a galactic guardian that fought for justice against a wide range of alien and human menaces. The show was corny as hell but she loved every minute of it. She's an avid collector of Space Spectre merchandise and memorabilia. Her collection is currently sitting in a crate onboard the Hercules.

Manner:

Aleana is generally friendly, but has a sarcastic snarky side that sometimes breaks through (usually at the worst possible moment). She has a wicked sense of humour, often with a bit of self-deprecation for good measure. Nothing makes her lose her sense of humour than people who talk down to her.

Quote: "What in the Space Spectre's name is going on here?" or "Keep your hands where I can see them and this conversation will remain friendly. If not, well. That's up to you."

Gear: NRF-issued blaster pistol (A Damage, DDF -1) with a stun setting (40 [T], DDF 0); NRF-issued spacesuit (2D6 Damage Protection); NRF-issued maglock boots; and scanner/communicator.
