Origin and Background: (American) Robert "Bob" Little was a chemist who worked for a large pharmaceutical company (Zenith Laboratories) located in New Augustus City. He was given the task of running the animal tests for a special company formula, named X-7H4, that granted greater strength and durability. He did the standard trials that ended with excellent results. He recommended the formula move to human trials. His superiors agreed.

Unknown to the company, Bob had stolen several vials of the formula along with the actual formula. He was so impressed with the results, he had to try it on himself. It worked beyond his expectations. He gained increased strength, agility, and a limited form of invulnerability. Bob was thrilled with the results. Then the blackouts began. He would find himself in strange places doing who knows what, without knowing how he got there or why. Soon everything went to black...

Bob Little was gone. The X-7H4 formula had not only changed his physical body, it changed his mind thus creating a new persona called Baron Fear. As Baron Fear, he claims he is the scion of the Devil himself. He claims to be a Duke of Hell sent to earth to cause mayhem. He craves violence and rules his henchmen with exceptional brutality. He enjoys the fear he causes in others. He lives for that fear.

While under the influence of the X-7H4 formula, Bob Little has become a ruthless, yet cunning, professional crime boss. He quickly made a name of himself in the underworld of New Augustus City by taking control of the O'Donnell Syndicate. The other crime families of New Augustus soon parleyed a truce with Baron Fear and accepted his demands of a cut of their 'earnings.'

He uses his ill-gotten gains (from his syndicate connections) to finance a secret laboratory where he manufactures new supplies of X-7H4. This location, somewhere in New Augustus City, is a secret known only to Baron Fear.

Bob's wife, Faith, and their son, Oliver, don't exist as far as Baron Fear is concerned. Those are weaknesses of Bob Little's life, not his. Baron Fear doesn't give his old family a second thought. He is too busy causing havoc in New Augustus City to care.
