That way she can unlock the secrets of the world around her and ultimately, to the secrets of the universe. She does this not for personal gain but in the hope that it will help humanity finds its true place in the cosmos. She is absolutely fascinated by Robotechnology and Protoculture; she knows she still has so much to learn in the field of Robotechnology.

Lauren suffers from survivor's guilt in relation to the Zentraedi global assault. A part of her thinks she should have died when her family did. She knows that her survival was merely luck and it has no bearing on her as a person but deep down, a part of her doesn't want to listen to her rational side. Lauren has learned to suppress this guilt but it has a bad habit of flaring up when she least needs it.

Personal Profile: Lauren Abernathy originally hailed from London (United Kingdom) in the Northern Euro Sector. Her parents and four siblings were killed in the Zentraedi global assault, but by some miracle she survived it. Life was bleak until relief came in the form of the RDF. It was in 2011 when Lauren joined the Robotech Defense Force. Her talents with science were recognized early and she was assigned to field scientist duty.

   She's a thinker, not a fighter (even though she jokes about getting destroid combat training one day). When in the field, she is assigned to Corporal Ortiz's Raidar X Destroid. When on board and in combat, she has an advisory role only (It's Ortiz's destroid after all).
